

MATT NAGY

QUARTERBACKS

- 5th NFL Season
- 3rd with Chiefs

Matt Nagy enters his third season in Kansas City as the Chiefs quarterbacks coach in 2015. He is in his sixth season as an NFL assistant coach.

During his second year in Kansas City, Nagy helped QB Alex Smith continue his efficiency into 2014. Smith set a single-game franchise record for completion percentage, completing 25 of 29 passes (86.2%) for 223 yards vs. St. Louis (10/26/14). In his first two seasons, Smith has a combined 18 wins, marking the most wins by a Chiefs QB in his first two seasons with the club. He also has thrown for 3,000 yards in consecutive seasons marking the first time Smith has done so in his career. Nagy also mentored QB Chase Daniel who led Kansas City to a victory over AFC West rival San Diego in the last game of the regular season with playoff implications on the line after Alex Smith was sidelined with a spleen injury.

In his first year with the Chiefs, Nagy worked with Smith in a season that brought him five 100.0 plus quarterback ratings, one of which was a perfect rating of 158.3 at Oakland (12/15/13). Focusing on ball protection, he coached Smith to a league-low seven interceptions with a minimum of 300 attempts and a 1.4 interception percentage, also the lowest in the NFL. Smith's interception percentage in the 2013 season has him solidified as the third-best single season mark in franchise history. Smith also earned his first Pro Bowl selection following his first season with the Chiefs in 2013.

Before joining the Chiefs coaching staff, Nagy spent three years on the offensive staff of the Philadelphia Eagles, most recently serving two seasons as the franchise's offensive quality control coach (2011-12). He was promoted to that role after he served as a coaches assistant during the 2010
